EMINENT JURIST HAS PASSED AWAY

The Death of Judge Mabes on Monday Afternoon Is a National Loss.

FILLED A BIG PLACE IN THE DOMINION

Many Tributes Are Paid to the Late Chairman of the Railway Commission.

Toronto, May 6.—Judge J. P. Mabes, chairman of the Dominion board of railway commissioners, died at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon, following a short illness. He was 68 years of age. The first operation was performed on April 20th, and following it a bulletin was issued to the effect that he had died, was away, although a dangerous position of the appendicitis indicated that the operation was far from successful. On Tuesday there was a paralytic of the bowels with tremendous distension and a necessary operation was performed. Although the operation was a simple one, the patient's condition was so bad that he died out for his recovery. He lingered on, however, until this afternoon when he died.

Until 2 o'clock this afternoon, although gray, did not excited immediate alarm, but at 2 o'clock the heart began to beat again and he sank gradually. He was consigned to the last, and his son and daughter with his wife were at his bedside till the end.

Conspicuously successful

Practically every trial in Canada has been more conspicuously successful than Mr. Mabes in gaining the cause of justice. Since he was appointed to the chairmanship of the railway commission.

Toronto, May 6.—(Special). A. G. Blair, the author of the legislation under which the transportation tribunal was appointed, has written to Mr. Mabes, the chairman to which he was chosen as chief administrator of his own act surrounded by many difficulties, to assure him that his yield, even to his powerful intellect.

The machinery was at first intended to be a simple one, but the amount of railway litigation that was showered upon the tribunal. The case was so complex that the developments brought about Mr. Blair's retirement.

While Justice Wilson succeeded Mr. Blair, he had a big task in hand and the business still grew with such rapidity that in order to meet the demand it was necessary to increase in numbers so that they could divide their forces and in due time to yield, even to his powerful intellect.

The machinery was at first intended to be a simple one, but the amount of railway litigation that was showered upon the tribunal. The case was so complex that the developments brought about Mr. Blair's retirement.

Admirably fulfilled his purpose.

He has never been impeached, and manlike and bewitching as are the intricacies of railway law, he has met them in the inaccuracy of railway practice. It is fully recognized that the new court has done a great deal of work.

Judge Mabes succeeded to the chairmanship of a tribunal whose procedure had taken him into the heart of the intricacies of railway practice. He was firmly established in March 1905. He had been for some years a judge of the Ontario Court of Justice, and had not had the opportunity of specializing on railway law as a judicial capacity although as a private lawyer he had handled many railway cases. Those who knew the legal attainments and the personal qualities of the man were convinced that he was the right man for the place. That he has the tallest of the tall, and the most powerful of the powerful, was a Donington legend. Those who were formed regarding him is that he was born rugged, he is attested alike by the business community and by the legal profession, and he has got through the immense amount of work he has been entrusted with in a manner of surprise and admiration.

Brushed Aside Testimonials.

Just as the legal world of bushing and bawling were the result of the trial of the last, so the legal world was surprised by the practitioners to whom the letter was sometimes more than the spirit of the law, and the result was a recognition for common sense, ability, integrity, courage and industry.

Judge Mabes was of strict English descent, and was born in Col. Maibis having been a colonel of customs at Port Rowan, where the future judge was educated at the local school situated at the high school of St. Thomas and was admitted to the Ontario bar in 1884. Four years later he became a judge of the court of the law society in 1904, five years after having been made a King's counsel. He was a member of the bar in the practice of his profession, at Listowel, Stratford and Toronto and soon became a member of the Ontario bar. He was appointed a judge in 1905. He was married in 1881 to Marie, daughter of William Thorold, of Mount Williams, Ontario.

Tribute From Premier Borden.

Toronto, May 5.—The following tribute to the late Hon. J. P. Mabes was given by Right Hon. R. B. Borden tonight:

"It was with the deepest possible regret that I learned of Judge Mabes' death. His service to Canada, as chairman of the board of railway commissioners, was of the highest value and he was one of the full, strong and vigorous men, many years of independent life before him, when he died at his fatal illness. He had possessed excellent qualifications for the position which he filled, so ably and with such success, and he deserved at once his courage, his promptness, his fairness and his devotion to duty."

Toronto, May 6.—The funeral of the late Judge Mabes will take place at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon, following a short service at 12 o'clock. A special train will leave the Union station with Toronto's leading officials to attend.

"His death will come as a shock to the people of the whole province, especially to those in the west. During the short time he occupied the position of chairman of the Dominion board of railway commissioners, he proved that the site before him was a trifling one, which was a new one, could be successfully developed in the interests of the people. He was the ideal man for his office."

Deep Sorrow in Montreal.

Montreal, May 6.—News of the death of Judge Mabes was received with expressions of deep sympathy by prominent railway men in this city.
